Julien Benguigui, entrepreneur at heart and fond of contemporary art, launches a discussion one evening on toilet decorations. The conclusion of this conversation: Toilets rarely look stylish.

If the wallpaper or the various decorative elements sometimes add a bit of originality, the lid is the poor aspect of the decor. So why not make it artistic and, most of all, designer?

He then decided to launch TohaaDesign, an e-shop, just like an art gallery, dedicated to toilet seats. He selects talented and recognized artists and pitched in personally.

He is also eager to be present and following the entire manufacturing process.

« My ambition: to finally provide an aesthetic alternative to this useful mundane object, which turns into an unexpected artistic medium! »
